WASHINGTON, D. C. Jan. 17.—Resumption of direct negotiations between railroad executives and the "Big Four" Brotherhoods resumed today as national wide peace moved in the tangled affairs of railroad labor.

The movement, awaiting a major formal approval by railroad heads and executive councilors of the Brotherhoods, was intended as a prelude to setting a general rail strike this spring. It came as the result of a "peace conference" staged here by Secretary of Commerce Hoover.

The plan which was suggested to the administration involves the restoration of all present regional conferences. It was the intention of the administration. It was learned today to have all outstanding disputes either settled or on the way to settlement within a month before these regional conferences. By means of this administration leaders hope to meet strike movements with new from outsiders.

Denies, Too, That Men Were Buried With Ropes About Necks After Hanging.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—A flat denial of testimony that the bodies of American soldiers buried in France were not identified before they were shipped to relatives in the United States was made today before the senatorial committee investigating charges of ill-treatment of members of the A. "If the bodies were not identified, they were re-buried," Flynn told the committee.

Flynn, who was attached to the American Graves Registration Service ations will be well established next month. The initial sessions of the regional board are contemplated for this year, 10, according to announcements by Secretary Hudson.

This state was selected. It was chosen as a center to have the direct representation of activity under way in the annual spring "run" of rail road traffic. Questions involving wages and working agreements will be brought immediately before the national conferences, it was stated.

Included in the movement members also hope that the regional bodies will in due season interfere with or curb the progress of the United States National Labor Union. This regional body has a staff of 10 men, several of whom were active in the American labor union movement. They will attempt to influence the national board. There are further branches at Portland, Maine; Boston, Mass.; New York City; Philadelphia; St. Louis; Chicago; San Francisco; Los Angeles; and Seattle.

The group organized in the last few days of the month before the departure from the city yesterday. In their program, they intend to organize a new national organization which will have no racial barrier. The Negroes, however, it was added, will be actively participating in the movement. It was said that a new chapter was being formed in the south.

CORROBORATES STORY OF NEGRO INVAHING

THE STEPPING ON THE STAIRS

ISABEL OSTRANDER

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Detective Sergeant John Barry is spending the evening with his friend, Professor Semyonov, in the latter's rooms on the fifth floor of a New York apartment house. A revolver shot is heard from below and then hurrying footsteps on the stairs. They rush downstairs and in the studio apartment on the third floor discover the occupant, a beautiful woman, lying dead on the floor in front of an unfinished portrait. A bullet has just pierced her breast.

GO ON WITH THE STORY

Sergeant Barry made no comment but gently dropping the limp, warm head back upon the rug he rose and started a swift, comprehensive search of the apartment. From just behind him over his shoulder a large reflector threw the powerful light whose reflected rays had penetrated even to the outer hall; back of the easel and at one side where the artist could obtain the best view of it stood a small, improvised model throne with three steps and a section of balustrade, and back of it again the drawn shades over a row of half-opened windows flapped in the little, hot breeze which had sprung up with the passing of the threatened storm.

A long table covered with scattered tubes of paint and brushes, a few plain chairs and many canvases of various sizes stacked against the walls completed the furnishings of the workmanlike studio, the ceiling of which was one huge skylight of glass, and the detective turned back into the luxurious living room, his hand mechanically searching for and finding the light switch in the wall.

"Instantly the soft glow of many low, opal-tinted lamps sprang into being and revealed the sheer beauty of the arrangements of the room, but Sergeant Barry's eyes searched only for some sign of disorder that would indicate hurried flight, and finding none he opened the door at the back. It led into a boudoir upholstered delicately in light blue and rose, and through that he passed into an ivory and gold bedroom and to the tiled, immaculate kitchenette beyond, but nowhere was there a sign of alien presence.

"The icebox contains only butter and cream, and that dress and hat upon the bed would indicate that Mrs. Vane had dinner out," the professor observed.

"Vane? Miriam Vane? Barry wheeled suddenly. "Is that who she is, the artist who has created such a stir with her new type of portrait among the celebrities?"

"Yes. Her portraits are dangerously near caricatures, for some perverse impulse has seemed to guide her brush although so subtly that her clients themselves have rarely detected that sardonically revealing touch or two, but the critics have raved about her genius." The professor turned. "It is evident that we are too late here, for this kitchenette door leading into the outer hall is bolted from the inside; but someone is coming."

Someone had indeed arrived. They hastened back to the living room to find standing just within the doorway a young man in a dinner coat with wildly rumpled hair, and a policeman in uniform.

The latter, advanced with aggressive authority which suffered a sudden change.

"What's been going on here?" he heard a shot and I've been pounding below till this young gentleman here for me in. Oh, you're here, Sergeant Barry? Vane is my regular beat and thinking there was something unusual."

"There is, Boyle," Barry nodded.

Nothing as the policeman paused at the screened telephone on the table to breathe.

"Could you say, sir, whether those footsteps were going up or down?"

"Not definitely," the professor hastened. "One would suppose naturally that they were descending to escape."

He paused. Framed in the hall doorway there had appeared a tall, middle-aged man clad in a tattered dressing gown, with a lean, smooth-shaven, irascible face upon which astonishment struggled with resentment.

"What's been going on here, officer?" he demanded. "I'm Griswold, on the floor above. Who's been pounding on my door fit to wake the dead?"

"There's been murder going on, sir," Officer Boyle retorted grimly. "So it was pounding you heard best."

"That was it," Professor Semyonov remarked with dignity. "I stopped on the way down at this person's door but received no response."

"And your name's Griswold?" the policeman prevented an evidently heated rejoinder by his sharp question.

"Henry Griswold, and I know nothing whatever about any murder," declared the newcomer. "I do not care to be embroiled in any such thing."

"You're here, and you'll stay, sir, till we hear from headquarters," Boyle replied significantly. "So you're on the fourth floor and this gentleman here on the fifth?" He indicated the professor with marked courtesy in deference to the sergeant, and then turned to the young man in the chair.

"You have the apartment on the second floor, sir, just over the shop?"

The young man nodded without lifting his head and replied with troubled tones:

"Yes. My name is Gordon Laid. I heard you making that racket, you know, and went down to the entrance and yet you in."

"And that's all that lives in this house?" Boyle looked from one to another of them but his gaze finally fastened upon the professor and the latter replied:

"A lady lives on the top floor, the one above mine. I do not know her. Of the shop I can tell you nothing, but there is a janitor or superintendent who occupies the basement although I have never found him there when he is wanted for sudden repairs."

grimly to the policeman. "In that studio yonder there's a woman lying shot through the heart!"

"A woman?" The young man in the dinner coat repeated with a gasp. "Not Miriam Vane! It's impossible!"

He rushed past the group to the studio doorway, clung there for a moment in wordless horror, then collapsed into the nearest chair, burying his face in his hands.

Boyle was instantly all business. After a quick examination of the body he turned to Barry.

"Would you mind telling me, Sergeant?" he began but the other interrupted him.

"Not in the least, although we know very little. I was here unofficially, visiting this old friend of mine, Mr. Semyonov, who lives on the fifth floor—two above this—when we heard the shot and rushed down to investigate. There seems to be no one in the apartment directly above this one, and I took the responsibility of breaking in the door here because we could get no reply to repeated knocking and the light from the studio there streamed out under the sill into the outer hall. You can see how brilliant it is; it must be some special light for artists to paint by at night."

"I'll have to report this at once to the station," Boyle, who had been listening attentively, nodded and turned to the professor. "Have you anything, sir, to add to what Sergeant Barry has told me?"

Professor Semyonov pondered for a moment, and then said slowly:

"Only that when we heard the sound of the shot and opened my door I fancied that I heard footsteps on the stairs below."

Barry, whose eyes had turned to that collapsed figure in the chair, thought he saw a shudder sweep over it as though an unseen hand had shaken the inert form, but he said nothing as the policeman paused at the screened telephone on the table to breathe.

"Could you say, sir, whether those footsteps were going up or down?"

"Not definitely," the professor hastened. "One would suppose naturally that they were descending to escape."

He paused. Framed in the hall doorway there had appeared a tall, middle-aged man clad in a tattered dressing gown, with a lean, smooth-shaven, irascible face upon which astonishment struggled with resentment.

"There's been murder going on, sir," Officer Boyle retorted grimly. "So it was pounding you heard best."

"That was it," Professor Semyonov remarked with dignity. "I stopped on the way down at this person's door but received no response."

"And your name's Griswold?" the policeman prevented an evidently heated rejoinder by his sharp question.

"Henry Griswold, and I know nothing whatever about any murder," declared the newcomer. "I do not care to be embroiled in any such thing."

or other emergencies. There are no other occupants of the building, to my knowledge.

"Thanks, sir," Boyle turned again to the telephone and the municipal machinery of investigation into the death of Miriam Vane was set in motion.

"Well," Boyle squared his shoulders with a satisfied air. "I'll get what I can. I'll ask you, sergeant, to see that these three gentlemen stay in this room. Don't let one of them put a finger on the corpse, either!"

He added the last in a hoarse whisper that must have been plainly audible to the entire group for even the young man in the chair, overcome with horror as he appeared, shuddered and as the policeman started up the stairway with a heavy tread he raised a haggard face.

"It can't be!" he muttered as if to himself. "Not Miriam! I must be going mad!"

"So it's Miriam Vane, the woman painter, that's been murdered, as that police officer said?" Griswold drew his dressing gown closer about his lean form. "I should like to know, sir, why you hauled on my door and dragged me into it?"

He turned irascibly to the professor, who shook back his mane of bushy white hair and smiled with unguine urbanity.

"My dear sir, the sound of the shot came from below my rooms somewhere and my friend and I could not tell whether it came from your apartment or this one."

"I can tell when I hear a fiddle playing in my room," he said.

DAYTONA BEACH

Council Meeting Lengthy But Does Little Business

A lengthy session of the Daytona Beach council Monday evening resulted in little important business being transacted as the most of the time was spent in the discussion of various matters. Mrs. M. E. Abernethy personally presented her petition for a settlement of the matter of improvements and assessments on her property corner Peninsula drive and Main street, which has been brought up from time to time for several years. The council voted to take no action toward a concession.

M. D. Polz, auditor, presented an explanation of the delay on completion of the audit and analysis of the town's books. His bill for the services was discussed and finally the council voted a settlement of $350.

J. W. Camac was granted permit to connect his new building corner Main street and Live Oak with storm sewer, the town to furnish necessary pipe and fittings, a ten inch pipe to be laid on Live Oak that in future will take care of the remainder of the block.

At the request of Clerk Selden, C. M. Rogers was authorized to prepare an entire new map of the town of Daytona Beach, showing improvements, subdivisions, etc. to date, and make five copies of same for the use of the various departments. The cost of job to be $150.

J. S. Barbe gave notice that he would introduce at next meeting an ordinance providing a penalty for the parking on the wrong side of restricted streets. Bills of various departments were approved and ordered paid.

President Blockman was in the chair, Councilmen Barbe, Bradley, Harton, Thompson, Clerk Selden, Attorney Pope and Chas. H. Willson were present.

Coburn's Show Is a Special Number For Monday Night

"Not the biggest, but one of the best," no world renowned, all-star, enormous salaried European importations, but good, live American performers. The hard working, jazzy, full of pep, clean comedy and up to the minute novelty kind that have made Coburn's Minstrels in the past twenty-two years a household word and welcome visitor, composes this year's production at the Auditorium on next Monday, January 23. Charley Gano, that drollest, funniest, burnt cork chap, heads the comedy element with an entirely new stock of laugh producers, acts, parodies, and is surrounded with a company second to none in the minstrel line. "A strong singing show" among the best, is often heard of this company. Manager Coburn believes in and enjoys it himself. The appreciation of an audience for honest effort is as welcome as good box office receipts. Without good singing, minstrelsy would not remain at the head of the amusement line as it has for years. You know the show, the management and its record. Remember the date. Seats are on sale at the Auditorium Friday.

MITCHELL JONES

Miss Lillian Jones of 115 Halifax avenue, Seabreeze, the attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Jones, was married Saturday evening at 7:45 to Lee Mitchell at their future home, 12 Seaman place. Rev. W. L. Lewis of the First Congregational church performed the ceremony in the presence of Miss Dorothy Jones, sister to the bride, and Earl Mitchell, brother to the groom. Immediately following the ceremony the wedding party motored to Polly's Cupboard at Albiondale, where a wedding dinner had been planned for the happy party. Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell are at home to their many friends at 12 Seaman place, Daytona.

PENINSULA LOCALS

Mrs. Margaret Randolph and her attractive children arrived Monday afternoon from their home in Washington, D. C., and will spend the winter season at Daytona Beach.

Mrs. A. R. Fowler and daughter, Miss Myrtle Fowler, have arrived from their home at Woodstock, Ga., and have opened their pretty home on Peninsula drive, Seabreeze, for the season.

Mrs. C. M. Greiner of Halifax avenue, Seabreeze, is entertaining forty of her friends at tea this afternoon from 4 to 6 p. m. in honor of Mrs. Adelaide H. Vincent, who has just arrived from Chicago for the winter.

Attorney E. L. Kitzinger arrived Sunday afternoon from New Hampshire, and will spend the next two weeks with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Kitzinger, at their home on Peninsula drive, Daytona Beach.

The many friends of Miss Mary Hinderly will regret to learn that she has been confined to her home at 125 Peninsula drive, Daytona Beach, on account of being ill. Miss Hinderly has the third grade work at the Daytona Beach-Seabreeze public school.

Geo. M. Faith, of Bowditch Park, today telegraphed his mother congratulations upon her arrival at the advanced age of 92 years. Mrs. Faith is still in good health and gets about her home attending to household duties as she did when she was fifty years younger.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Guard and Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Monroe formed a motor party for St. Cloud Saturday morning, where they went to attend the St. John's River Conference of the M. E. church. On Sunday morning they attended the services conducted by Bishop Richardson, which they found extremely interesting. The party returned to Daytona Beach late Sunday evening and report a most delightful trip with highways good.

J. H. Hartman of Ashland, Ohio has accepted a position as salesman for the Ramsey grocery, and commenced work Monday morning. Mr. Hartman comes to Daytona Beach extremely well recommended, having spent eight years with one high class grocery firm in Ashland, besides holding other very valuable positions in his former vocation.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Trapp arrived Monday afternoon from their home in Gates Mills, Ohio, expect to remain in Daytona for an indefinite period.

"Joseph and His Brethren" Plays at Beach Tonight

A true portrayal of the life and story of Joseph will be seen in this picture and will be impressed on the minds and hearts of those who see it in such a manner that great good will result from the showing of it. Bible students especially, will consider it a privilege and will see in it a version of that wonderful story, the possibilities of help along the lines of teaching Sunday school classes.

Besides Joseph and his Brethren, will be shown a Bruce Seaside and Lyman Howe's half reel "A Runaway Train."

The program for tonight is an assembly number and single admission prices will be 15 and 25c including war tax. Reserved seats 50c including war tax.

Thousands Enjoy Frieda Hempel By Radio Telephone

Frieda Hempel played the leading role in the greatest radio telephone operatic concert ever staged in San Francisco. The famous prima donna of the Chicago Opera company fairly eclipsed her recent operatic triumphs when she sang for thousands of un- known music lovers—many of them thousands of miles away.

The concert was given in the radio room of the California theater. The prima donna's audience was scattered broadcast over land and sea—every radio station within a radius of 1,500 miles keeping open house. Perhaps the most enthusiastic group was in Honolulu, 2,100 miles away. Magdalena Bay was listening in, 50 miles away in Mexico and Point Loma, 1,500 miles to the south; 1,500 miles to the north stations in southern Alaska were picking up the music, and 1,500 miles to the east Hempel's voice of gold and music was proceeding her to Japan, where she chokes her tour with the Chicago Opera company this week.

The radio concert was arranged by the San Francisco Call, and was given on Thursday evening, April 21, at 6 o'clock. The DeForest Radio phone in the California theater radio room, where Miss Hempel sang, was tuned to 1,200 meters wavelength. Elmer Wheeler Stone had full charge of the scientific end of the stunt. According to Lieutenant Stone, Hempel has a perfect wireless voice.

Sam Small Will Speak Twice On Sunday, Jan. 22

Sam Small, the famous orator and evangelist of Georgia, will be the speaker at a patriotic rally to be held in the First Baptist church, Sunday afternoon, January 22nd, at 3 o'clock.

The subject of Dr. Small's address will be "Blue Laws Versus Red Laws," and a very timely and interesting discussion is anticipated.

For nearly three decades Dr. Small has been one of the prominent figures on the American platform. With Sam Jones, Dr. Small held evangelistic and tabernacle meetings in every section of the country, and the two "Sams" were heard by thousands. His quaint and peculiar way of expressing his thoughts coupled with the oratory which makes the speakers of the Southland attractive, had placed Dr. Small as a favorite before the public. He is a man of exceptional ability and his practical experience as an attorney, journalist, author, soldier, minister, evangelist and lecturer, has given him a wealth of material upon which to draw.

HON. SAM SMALL, Famous orator and evangelist of Georgia, who will speak next Sunday afternoon at the First Baptist church, Daytona, and on the evening at the Calvary Baptist church.

Dr. Small is an Episcopalian and Henry College man and is considered as one of the most noted living graduates of that old Virginia school. Taylor University conferred the Ph. D. upon him and the Ohio Northern University the D. D. He wears the button of a Confederate soldier and the pin of a Spanish War veteran, and his three sons were in active service during the great war. But it is his remarkable ability and his versatile manner, both of thinking and of speaking, that have large audiences wherever he speaks.

The meeting is under the local direction of the ministers of Daytona, and the national campaign of the National Referee Association, the oldest reform organization in the United States, which is sending Dr. Small on a tour of the principal cities of the South in a campaign in behalf of the application of Christian principles to the solution of the unsolved problems of the present day. No admission fee is charged.

Dr. Small speaks at the Calvary Baptist church, Daytona Beach, Sunday evening, January 22nd, on the subject, "America, For Christ or for Mammon."

Two Demonstrations of Crystallizing Fruit to Be Given By Miss Cole

Miss Opelia Cole, county demonstration agent, will meet with the Port Orange Ladies and Literary Association Wednesday, January 25th, at 2 p. m., in Grace Church Hall for two demonstrations of crystallizing fruit. The crystallizing process, as well as the making of fruit candy and other interesting features, will be explained.

Miss Cole will also take up the same line of work Friday afternoon at the V. L. A. in Daytona for the same purpose, and all interested in the movement are urged to attend.

Goldenberg and Crosby Attend Good Road Meet

S. B. Goldenberg and W. B. Crosby, representing the Chamber of Commerce, left this morning for Tallahassee, Fla., to attend a meeting in the interest of improving the roads of the state.

This morning is being attended by representatives of various chambers of commerce and boards of trade from every section of the state and several important road projects are to come up for discussion. The representatives from Daytona expect to return Thursday.

Cordial Support Given Proposed Hospital Project

Universal sentiment as expressed at last night's meeting of the hospital committees left no room for doubt as to the intention of the Halifax community to take up the work of establishing a new public health institution and to do the work as it should be done.

The meeting was called to order at 8 o'clock by George N. Rigby, of Ormond, who presided in the absence of the regular chairman of the temporary organization committee.

Growing interest in the movement and entire sympathy with it was evidenced by a much larger attendance than at the first meeting, and for the benefit of those attending for the first time a brief outline of the work accomplished so far was given. Mr. Loder sketched the beginning of the work and described the way it had finally begun to shape up, expressing keen appreciation of the cordial assistance and cooperation received from the local newspapers.

The meeting was then thrown open for discussion and questions, and suggestions invited on the part of individual committee members. Several members took this opportunity to express their cordial support in the work and of the present plans. Dr. J. Blake White, of Ormond, suggested that since larger bed capacity could be provided at little increased cost, it would seem wise not to build in too restricted a way. Dr. White mentioned 150 or 200 beds as well within conservative figures. Chairman Rigby called on James P. Vining of the Bretton Inn for an explanation of his views. Mr. Vining remarked that he had not lost an opportunity in four or five years to advocate the need of such an institution for these communities and he still felt the same way about it.

Consideration was given to final permanent organization and a motion was made and passed that a nominating committee be appointed by the chair to select a permanent organization committee to be voted on at the next meeting. Owing to the fact that a number of organizations have still to appoint their committees, those present felt that provision for the rest of the permanent organization should be held open for another week or so and allow time for these other groups to officially ally themselves with the work. Such committees as a general executive committee, committee on incorporation, one on legacies and endowments, as well as committees on building and an automobile service, were discussed and will probably be provided for definitely at the next meeting. Work of the women's committee was described in connection with the various women's auxiliary and the importance of the part women are to take in institutional affairs was emphasized.

Interest in the hospital project by the winter residents was best indicated by the fact that the winter resident auxiliary committee was present 100 percent.

Mathew Schon of the American Legion arrived at the meeting late, coming directly from the American Legion meeting. Mr. Schon reported that the Legion had just taken decisive action on the hospital project and as a body stands strongly behind the work.

One of those present as a guest was Miss Julia Leech, R. N., superintendent of the Somerville hospital at Somerville, Mass. Miss Leech is a former Triple Cities resident and is greatly interested in the movement. She mentioned her experiences in different hospitals and cautioned against doing the thing in too small a way.

"By all means," said Miss Leech, "provide an institution large enough and provide a nurses' training school. Such a school is all important for the work is done better, the community is better served and having the service given by student nurses goes a long way to help make a hospital financially successful."

She likewise emphasized having the hospital large enough for a convalescent ward where patients may have opportunity to recuperate under proper conditions and gain full benefit of what has been done for them in the hospital.

Jinx Follows the Boxing Match; An Injury Stops It

The jinx was with Manager Mandel Monday evening when the second of a series of bouts was scheduled at the Armory. During the past week one of the principals of the main bout had the misfortune to break some bones in his hand; a substitute was secured and all looked well. Then the jinx got busy last night and spilled the beans again.

The battle royal which started at 8:30 was the usual opener; it was good while it lasted and the same colored boy that won the battle on January second was winner last night. The ladies present enjoyed this stunt and cheered heartily. After the usual scramble for the coins that were thrown in the ring by the spectators, the crowd settled down for the preliminary to begin.

Two colored boys had been engaged for a three round bout but they did

All Fans Invited Out to Important Ball Meet Tonight

Baseball fans of the Triple Cities who are interested in the continuation of summer baseball will hold a meeting in Orlando tomorrow, at which time the representatives of the Daytona team must make some definite announcement as to whether the team will remain in the league or not, and some definite move must be made at the meeting to be held tonight.

If the committee report that they are unable to dispose of the tickets some other financial arrangements must be made.

Baseball Game at City Island Has to Be Postponed

Failure of uniforms to arrive in time will prevent the game planned between the teams representing Daytona and the Ormond Hotel which was scheduled for Thursday of this week.

It was announced today that the game would be played next week on the local diamond, the exact date to be announced later. The Ormond team is reported to be in excellent condition as they have been working out each afternoon for two or three weeks. The team that will represent Daytona in the winter baseball game also is in fine shape and some great games are expected.

Arrangements for the winter baseball season are in charge of P. C. Rodgers, who is being aided by J. E. Williams, president of the indoor baseball league, and Jack Martin, manager of the Daytona baseball team of the Florida State League.

LEONARD TO MEET PAL MORAN AT NEW ORLEANS FEB. 24TH

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 17.—Fanny Leonard, world champion lightweight, will meet Pal Moran, star of the South, here on February 24. Billy Gibson, Leonard's manager, accepts the terms offered by promoter Torrence of this city. It was said today that Moran has already accepted the terms and that they are now being considered by Gibson. If the pair is matched it will be their first meeting since 1920, when they fought at East Chicago.

Pleads Guilty to Worthless Check Passing at Beach

Boy A. Hix, of uncertain address at Daytona Beach and dining Nashville as his home, was committed to the county jail at Deland today, following a plea of guilty in Justice R. L. Sullivan's court this morning to a charge of passing a worthless check.

Hix was arrested last evening on a warrant sworn out by W. J. Gifford, assistant attorney of the town, the worthless check having been drawn for $25 on the First Coast Bank & Trust Co. It was said that other checks had also been cashed by Hix. This morning Hix pleaded guilty to the charge of passing the check, and was committed to the county jail for 30 days with the sheriff. He took the train for his family.

BADE TO BREAK NO HOME RUN RECORDS THIS YEAR, BELIEF

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Eddie Ruth will break no home record this year. That is, not if the suspension against him stands, and it is believed that it will.

This is the opinion of baseball men in general, and although officials of the New York Yankees today declined to discuss the probable effect of a month's suspension will have on Ruth's hitting, it is a practical clinch they feel the same way about it.

The case of the home-run king has been revived by the circulation of a rumor that the Major Leagues will throw out the rule against home-storming at their schedule meetings in February.

This rumor is vigorously denied in some quarters for it is pointed out, Judge Landis' decision must be strictly upheld with no show of attempts at evasion and compensation of Ruth now would be looked upon as a purely commercial move.

"We have heard nothing regarding the case of Ruth or Muesel since Judge Landis handed down his decision," said Business Manager Ed Harrow of the Yankees today. "And all I know is that the ruling does not apply to the coming exhibition season. As far from this, I do not care to discuss the case."

Poor Eddie Ruth's suspension stands and he gets started on his 1922 campaign for home-runs within five days of May 20, when he will again be eligible to enter the Yankee lineup. He will start just 12 home runs behind his record of last season.

Ruth got his first homer last season on April 16, and his twelfth on May 17, at Cleveland. He did not get his thirtieth until May 25. So the team cut out for the big home run, if he is kept out of the line up, will be just about as big as a house.

Daytona Jobbing House Opens Soon On No. Beach St.

The latest addition to Daytona's commercial business is the Daytona Jobbing House, currently under construction and which will open about February 1st at 225 North Beach street. The location having been leased for two years by the new firm.

The firm is composed of A. H. Ginsberg, formerly of Tallahassee, who has been in the wholesale dry goods and notions business in the capital for the past 25 years, and P. H. Hillman, of Atlanta, who is also experienced in this line.

The firm plans to cover this portion of the state with its wholesale dry goods to meet. The members have already made application for membership in the Daytona Chamber of Commerce and stocks are expected to be a few weeks for the opening of the first of next month.

Two Trucks In Collision; One Loses a Wheel

A light Ford delivery truck owned by P. C. Fugate and being driven by W. J. Kanaw collided Monday evening with a Ford truck owned by the Harte Grocery Co., resulting in the right front wheel of the Harte truck being smashed so badly that an entire new wheel and tire had to be gotten before the truck could go on.

It appears that the Harte truck was coming south on Beach street and when near the corner of West avenue the driver held out his hand as a signal that he was going to stop or turn around. The Fugate truck going north was coming at a fair rate of speed and the driver, Kanaw, saw Red Wood, the driver of the Harte truck, hold out his hand but Kanaw thought he had plenty of room. The distance, however, was shorter than it seemed with the result that the Fugate truck caught the Harte truck amidships, throwing it up against a telephone pole and shearing off the wheel and bending the coils severely. Neither driver was hurt as the impact and Fugate's truck showed only where the body of the big truck had scraped the radiator and bending the lamp brackets.

A second accident followed this, as the Harte service car was leaving the scene of the first accident. P. L. Davidson's car, coming south on Beach street, struck the Harte car, damaging the rear of the Harte car, tearing off the step and bars, and damaging the Harte car on the left front corner. Both cars were able to continue.

ARTIE O'LEARY

not show up, consequently two other boys had to be procured. Dick Thompson, who refereed the bouts, instead of waiting for the boys to show up, put on the sentimental bout between Artie O'Leary, of Bridgeport and Young Schaffer of Charleston, S. C. These two boys weighed in at 125 pounds, put up a dandy, good scrap and were at it hammer and tongs from the crack of the bell to the finish. Evenly matched in weight, speed and experience, it was a pretty sight to see the sparring for openings, feints etc.

O'Leary had the best of the fight and was awarded the decision, having four rounds out of six to his credit. He drew first blood with a smashing right to the nose in the third round, landed the most blows and worked the hardest. Schaffer did his best but only got warmed up in the last two rounds which of course lost him the decision. Had the fight gone the ten round limit, it would have been a draw for both boys tired themselves out with fast and furious work. The tap of the gong at the end of the sixth round found both boys too fatigued to swap punches just as fast as the human arm could push them over.

The best hat in The Waldorf Shop was awarded the winner as an additional prize by Frank Tracey.

The preliminary bout was then put on, the colored boys having appeared on the scene. This was another joke until both boys were cautioned by the referee after which some real stugging took place. Neither boy had the least idea of boxing but the laugh the spectators got out of it was well come.

The main bout was between Terry Nelson of Chicago and Larry Klumbe of Jacksonville. They weighed in at 125 pounds and were evenly matched, science and speed against brawn, jabs and hooks fairly coming through the air. At times the two men fought with the speed of a flash and hurt every time they landed a blow. The thing that was most interesting was that if ever a human being were take punishment it was Klumbe. At times he took all that was heaped to him, simply waiting for a chance to put over a deep knockout. Klumbe was too fast for his own good.

The usual challenges were not made last night although Mandeloff explained to the audience that he was doing his best to get a suitable opponent for Dick Thompson.

"I never saw an off-transplanted tree nor yet an off-remove family"

That throve as well as those that settled be." So said Ben Franklin through his illustrious "Poor Richard."

In other words, that remarkable pioneer of thrift was telling you to settle down.

He owned his home.

Do you own yours?

If not, permit us to show you some interesting homes at a price you can afford to pay.

Books made Ben Franklin

Franklin and books just naturally went together.

As a matter of fact, all thinking men are ever associated with books.

Through books we may learn how those brave souls who refused to follow precedent have made for the world's progress.

Then we are happy to add our mite.

Read a book a week.

We have them.
